

GINA PICCIRILLI HAYDEN

I am a spiritually inspired artist who conveys life stories through my work in clay. I have a strong connection with nature and hope to emulate and project the healing I feel in the beautiful imperfection around me. Within the strength and frailty of Mother Nature I have found my place, my world. The eternal parallels between the human race and mother earth never ceases to amaze me. It's with that wonder I find inspiration .With the clay of the earth I sculpt and create the stories I need to tell.

Greek and Roman Gods and Goddesses title my work. As a true testament of time, mythology works as a bridge between the past and present. Proving how the stories never change, only the people do. Like Persephone the Goddess, all things die and then return and the world comes to life again.

As I evolve, my art has become my voice. I sculpt my stories and hope they are not only seen, but heard and felt, and that they bring peace and comfort.
